Certificate in Responsible Green Marketing Communications (RGMC)

Learn how to effectively qualify and substantiate your 'green' marketing claims—using global principles

This 3-hour online course uses video briefs from industry experts and examples of real ads banned by regulators to give you a clear understanding of the difference between well-substantiated environmental claims and misleading statements that can lead to accusations of “greenwashing”.

Why take the RGMC?

- Globally applicable: this course will teach you how to apply the principles from the ICC Advertising and Marketing Communications Code—the basis for national advertising codes in 42 countries—to your own marketing communications
- Learn how to qualify and substantiate 'green' claims like “free from”, “degradable”, “recyclable content” and more using guidance from the ICC Framework for Responsible Environmental Marketing Communications
- Build lasting trust with clients and consumers and show your commitment to responsible, substantiated communications with an environmental marketing credential from the industry standard-setters

Who is the RGMC for?

- PR, marketing and advertising professionals
- Environmental and sustainability officers
- Senior leaders committed to creating and communicating their “green” narrative
- Consultants and lawyers advising on responsible environmental marketing communications
- Students studying business, marketing and sustainability

What is the ICC Advertising and Marketing Code?

The ICC Advertising and Marketing Communications Code (ICC Code) provides a set of guidelines and standards for various stakeholders in the advertising industry and serves as the cornerstone for most self-regulatory systems around the world. The ICC Code is developed by experts from all industry sectors. This course is based on the ICC Framework for Responsible Environmental Marketing Communications, which expands on the guiding principles of Chapter D in the ICC Code.
